Product description

Supremacy, is a leg restrictor. In the context of BDSM, it is a consensual and erotic practice that involves limiting a person's freedom of movement to intensify the sexual experience and explore consensual power dynamics. This type of activity is carried out with full consent and open communication between participants.

The leg restrictor can be designed to restrain the lower extremities. This accessory is made with body-safe materials, and is designed with comfort and safety in mind.

The experience of the leg restrictor in BDSM can generate a feeling of vulnerability and surrender on the part of the person who is involved. Being restricted, which can be deeply erotic for some individuals. The person performing the restraint, known as the Dominant, assumes a controlling and responsible role, providing an intensely sensory and emotional experience for both participants.

The leg restraint can be performed in various positions, such as the scissors position or the frog position, and can be combined with other elements of BDSM, such as incorporating bandages on the legs, eyes, role play or specific sex toys.

It is imperative that clear boundaries are established before engaging in any BDSM activity, including leg restraints, and that constant communication is maintained throughout the session to ensure the comfort and well-being of each person involved. It is recommended to use a safe word that allows the submissive person to immediately communicate their need to stop the activity.

Safety and hygiene are also crucial aspects in the practice of BDSM. Accessories must be in good condition, and people must be informed about the correct use of restraint devices to avoid unnecessary injuries or discomfort. Additionally, proper cleaning of accessories before and after use is essential.
