How can you practice in a healthy way?

*Communication is vital. On the one hand, all parties involved must verbally and clearly express their consent to carry out some of these practices. But that's not all, there must also be a prior conversation about the so-called soft limits, those that I am willing to give in and/or negotiate, and the hard limits, those that I am not willing to compromise.

*Use the so-called safe word, that is, choose a certain word that means "stop", either because something is uncomfortable, painful or unpleasant. It is recommended that it be a color or a word that is not generally said during the sexual act, such as a soft color or something, for example "yellow" or "pink" so that the dominant or submissive hears it and stops. It is also advisable not to use words like "No" or "Stop" since it can be even more stimulating for the other person.

*Do not use items that pose a risk to the other person, that is, implements that have been created specifically for these practices and that is why it is very important to use products like COQUETTE CHIC DESIRE FANTASY. Sex toys can also be safely included in these practices, whether for penetrative sex, masturbation, or external stimulation.

*Never forget to use a condom, since only in this way will you be preventing the transmission of sexually transmitted diseases.

On the other hand, if it is the first time you are trying these practices, the first thing you have to do is inform yourself and get good advice to know what it is about, its myths and truths. "We suggest starting at the least intense and increasing the intensity, only then will those involved be able to discover their limits, what they like or not. In this aspect, at COQUETTE CHIC DESIRE FANTASY we have products that can be a great support for this path. There are also board games that help "break the ice" to try and discover new sensations."

“And of course, as we mentioned before, beforehand, have a clear and honest conversation with the partner about limits and, by the way, about consent to carry out some or all of the practices that are part of BDSM”
