Product description

"Feroman Concentre" contains active ingredients that act as a synergistic enhancer of the production of the male pheromones androstadienone. Feroman considerably increases its production by 269%, to achieve, in a few minutes, an increase in natural pheromones.

Pheromones are odorless and consciously undetectable natural substances that trigger a deep sexual response in the brain of those who come into contact with them, and which is related to sexual attraction. Its production and secretion are natural processes and are hormonally regulated by stimuli from the nervous system that reach the cells of the apocrine glands and the sebocytes of the sebaceous glands. .

"Feroman concentrate" has the property of modulating the own production of pheromones upwards through the synergistic action of its components, tripling the production of androstadienone; its action is almost immediate; With “feroman concentre” you will feel more confident, more attractive and desired, and you will gain more confidence to act and seduce. The product is designed to activate, in man, the powerful action of the synthesis of his own pheromones, more than triple that of foreign or synthetic pheromones.

Feroman concentrate is the natural alternative to increase the production of androstadienone pheromones.

It has no smell, it is compatible with perfume or cologne for personal and regular use, without altering the aromas.

A product that will help enhance and release one's own pheromones, turning men into a unique symbol of seduction.
