Product description

Women during menopause begin to experience changes such as hot flashes, sweating and sleep problems due to the hormonal changes associated with this stage, such as reduced production of estrogen and progesterone.

The hormonal decrease leads to a decrease in blood flow in the pelvic area and, consequently, it will cause vaginal dryness, elasticity is decreased and this can cause discomfort and irritation during games and sexual intercourse.

Menopause should not result in a reduction in sexual activity, nor, of course, a decrease in pleasure. In his opinion, the beliefs that associate the cessation of menstruation with the end of a woman's sexual relations only are examples of a collective imagination full of errors and prejudices.

The new INTENSE range of sex toys, and specifically the range of vibrators and clitoral stimulators that have become so popular in recent years, can be allies for women during menopause. Stimulating the genital area and the clitoris itself means increasing vaginal lubrication, very useful in the face of dryness caused by the hormonal drop associated with menopause.

Another positive point about the use of sex toys such as clitoral stimulators is that the stimulation manages to make the woman more aware of her own body. The only way in which you can have a full sexuality is to become aware of our own body, desires and needs. And many are able to reconnect with their ability to enjoy themselves through a sex toy.
