How does it work

These tablets contain a balanced combination of Fenugreek and Fennel and Saw Palmetto, which naturally help to lift and firm the breasts, providing support to the pectoral muscles and contributing to the normal functioning of the pectoral muscles. Fenugreek and fennel seeds have natural effects that are similar to those of the female hormone estrogen. Estrogen is very important in the development of female sexual characteristics, including breast growth. Saw palmetto is an herb that is a source of fatty acids. Fatty acids are an indispensable part of hormone production and are therefore important for normal hormone balance, including prolactin. Calcium contributes to normalizing the muscular system, including the function of the pectoral muscle. Dong Quai contains a number of active substances that maintain women's health. Cumin seeds are a source of essential minerals for the body, including magnesium and iron, which contribute to physical well-being.
