Product description

Used by medical professionals, Aqualube (also called AquaGel) is a sterile lubricant formulated to be safe and keep play more hygienic. Its clear, jelly-like solution is thick and long-lasting for easy insertion, making it ideal for use with anal sex toys and urethral probes.

Each sachet contains a single dose of lubricant, enough for use with a single insertable electrode. Please note that the inner sachet packaging design may vary, but the quality and quantity will be the same.

- 10 sachets of 5g per pack.

If you're looking for a thick, long-lasting lubricant that also guarantees healthy and pleasurable fun, this sterile lubricant is ideal for you. Each individually sealed sachet contains a single dose of gamma-irradiated lubricant for complete sterilization.

Thanks to its thick, slippery consistency, the lubricant is ideal for use with harder-to-handle insertable probes, ensuring maximum safety in delicate areas. Use it with urethral probes and anal sex toys for comfortable insertion without inhibiting the electrical current.

The lubricant of choice for many medical professionals, you can confidently apply this sterile lubricant packet to our electrodes, as well as any other sex toy in your collection. Note: This product is a lubricant, not a cleaner. Use a sex toy cleaner to ensure the cleanliness and hygiene of your toys.
