Product description

The Andro Extender is a new medical product based on the traction principle, from the same manufacturers as the Andropenis®

It is classified as a Type 1 Medical Device, and has the CE health certification, mandatory in Europe.

The device consists of a plastic ring connected to two metallic and dynamic rods into which a plastic support with a silicone rubber is fitted to hold the glans.

The AndroExtender is a device that you can put on or take off yourself, and that for its discretion and comfort can be worn walking, sitting, standing, etc.

The AndroExtender is a device to lengthen the penis using the traction principle.

It is based on the reaction capacity of tissues when subjected to a continuous traction force, which causes cell multiplication in them.

The principle of traction is applied in tissue expansion in plastic surgery, which generates skin to cover skin defects, burns or bald areas.

It is also applied in bone distraction for the lengthening of bone diaphysis of limbs and phalanges.

In ancestral cultures, this principle is used to elongate different parts of the body, such as the neck in the Paduang tribe of Burma (the giraffe women), or the lips or ears in African or Amazonian tribes, who place prostheses or weights to lengthen them.

Prestigious scientific studies presented at international conferences demonstrate the effectiveness of these devices.

Androextender metal shafts are made of surgical aluminum.
