Problems reaching orgasm?

If you are a woman you know that reaching orgasm is not easy. The influence of emotions largely determines our ability to develop the sexual act, achieve pleasure and enjoy the sensations that a sexual relationship offers us. The existence of negative emotions, such as anxiety, worries or sadness, make it difficult to concentrate and make it easier to reach orgasm.

Apart from the influence of emotions, there may also be problems of anorgasmia, which is the recurrent and persistent inhibition of the organ-gasm. Along with lack of desire, anorgasmia is one of the most common sexual dysfunctions in women.

We can classify the different types of anorgasmia that exist:

- Primary: when you have never had an orgasm
- Secondary: when someone who has had orgasms normally stops experiencing them
- Absolute: when you are not able to reach orgasm through self-stimulation, masturbation, etc.
- Situational: when orgasm can be achieved only in certain situations or specific positions.
